Meeting Food Insecurity Head On

There is no single face of food insecurity. Martina sits quietly next to the food bank entrance with a wide smile on her face. She waits patiently for her turn to check in. This is her second visit to the ICS Food Bank. She works occasionally helping a friend with her dog grooming business and just had an interview with McDonalds. She brightens when she hears about the Job Resource Center and other services available at ICS.

It is a typical Wednesday morning at the ICS Food Bank. There is a hum of conversation with an occasional burst of laughter. A small boy happily reads an ABC book in the corner while his mother sits across the desk from Ethel who checks her in. Ethel has been volunteering at the ICS Food Bank for about 10 years. Ethel recognizes the mother. "Are you still at the same address? You have seven in your family, right?" There is a basket of snacks on the desk. "Here, pick what you want. Hmm, this one looks like it might taste like cardboard, try another." More laughter.

I in 4 children go to bed hungry each night

A Word from the CEO

Dear Friends of ICS,

Spring is a season of growth, hope and often opportunity. The spring of 2018 has brought a “blooming of opportunity” at Interfaith Community Services to more effectively serve our neighbors in need.

In this issue of the ICS We Care Newsletter, you’ll read about some of the key milestones that have propelled our outreach of help and hope in early 2018:

- Another sold-out Empty Bowls to support the ICS Food Banks with over 1,200 attending and record breaking net proceeds (see Page 10). Special thanks to event chair Sandy Ricker, and an amazing committee that made Empty Bowls 2018 such a resounding success.
- The opening of an expanded ICS southside presence at El Pueblo Neighborhood Center to support our RSVP Senior Corps program and to expand access to ICS financial assistance resources along with a mobile pantry location starting in late April (see Page 6).

This growth is good news for those we serve because it offers new pathways of opportunity for those who turn to ICS in a time of crisis. We are truly grateful for your support which enables ICS to continue to meet community needs with compassion.

Serving with you,

K. Daniel Stoltzfus
Chief Executive Officer

“Helping people in need achieve stable, healthy and independent lives.”

Many who come to the ICS Food Banks never thought they would need to ask for help. Maybe it was a loss of a job or a health crisis which forced them to choose between paying a bill and buying enough food for their family. Having to make those choices with resources moves many families closer to food insecurity.

In order to enable those in need to meet the most basic living requirement for nutrition, ICS partners with the Community Food Bank of Southern Arizona to distribute over 3,500 emergency food bags each month. Registered households can receive one food allotment per month, filled with basic food staples. ICS allows recipients to select supplemental food items to stretch their resources. This extra food comes from community food drives, faith communities, businesses and individual donations.

The experience at the ICS Food Banks is a little different than other food pantries. It is more like going to a small grocery store. That is due, in large part, to the efforts of Curt Balko, ICS Food Bank Coordinator, and dedicated volunteers who are determined to make

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) defines food insecurity as a lack of consistent access to enough food for an active, healthy life.

The ICS Food Bank often opens a pathway leading to more services

There is a line of about 8 clients waiting along the shelves of crates holding reserves of canned goods.

As clients reach the front of the line, they are greeted warmly by Ted. He asks each client his or her name and offers a handshake and a shopping cart. Ted puts the basic food bag in the cart, shares fliers about free tax preparation and other available services, then introduces the clients to their personal shopper.

“Ruth, this is Amanda. Amanda, this is Ruth, she will be helping you today.” Ruth offers a handshake and a wide smile. It is that compassionate and respectful approach that helps clients, who often arrive worried and stressed, feel a little better than when they arrived. Martina says the greatest thing about the ICS Food Bank is the caring people. “You know, people helping people. It’s beautiful. Give and you shall

Walmart Neighborhood Markets Food Drive

All ten local Walmart Neighborhood Markets are coming together in a big way to help neighbors in need who are facing food insecurity.

From May 5 – May 18 shoppers at Walmart Neighborhood Markets can purchase at the register a $5 bag of the most needed food items for the ICS Food Banks. The items will be given to ICS and directly distributed to adults and children who can really use them.

“Our food donations fall during the summer at the same time we see a rise in families coming to the ICS Food Banks because they don’t have access to support such as free school lunches,” says Curt Balko, ICS Food Banks Coordinator. “This generous food drive from Walmart Neighborhood Markets will go far in helping us keep our shelves stocked.” In March, the Walmart Foundation also provided the ICS Food Banks with a generous $20,000 grant to help with supplies and food bank operation.

"Sam Walton, early in the establishment of Walmart, set up his company with the values of: service to the customer; respect for the individual; strive for excellence, and act with integrity. I also believe these are principles we apply to life in general. We are grateful to the community’s support of Walmart Neighborhood Markets and believe that is what a good neighbor is about – helping others,” says Garrett Harrison, store manager at the Walmart Neighborhood Market at Ina and Thornydale, who organized the promotion.

At ICS we love our volunteers, and we want to show it! Stop by our Northwest Office during National Volunteer Appreciation Week April 16-20. Grab a treat, sign your name to our appreciation sunburst, and enter the daily raffle.

Can You Help ICS fill a summer volunteer driver drought?

Many of our regular volunteer drivers take summer vacations, creating an urgent need for summer volunteers to serve seniors in our transportation and Mobile Meals areas. During June, July and August, ICS offers the ANYWHERE DRIVER PROGRAM for transportation volunteers where a monthly prize is raffled off to participating drivers willing to drive anywhere in the community to help. Consider joining our ANYWHERE team to provide frail and aging adults essential transportation to the grocery store, pharmacy, medical appointments, etc., so they can stay healthy and avoid isolation. Go to www.icstucson.org and click on the volunteer tab to learn more or contact Volunteer Resources Manager Tori Carlson at tcarlson@icstucson.org or 526-9308.

ICS Staff Update

Welcome

Elizabeth Corona, Front Desk and Administrative Assistant, was born and raised in Los Angeles, CA. She holds a Medical Administrative Assistant Certificate from Pima Medical Institute and heard about ICS through her work at CODAC. Fun Fact: Elizabeth won a poetry contest in Las Vegas.

Felicia Vega, Home-Sweet-Home Coordinator, began volunteering with ICS three years ago. She has volunteered in various programs at ICS including at the front desk, and transportation. Felicia loves skiing.

Congratulations

Dr. Tandala Kidd, ICS Care Partners and Education Outreach Coordinator, was recognized for her contribution to educational enrichment and family strengthening at the Making A Powerful Impact Through Powerful Service event hosted by Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc.

ICS Self-Sufficiency Director Lia Pierse (second from left) was among 50 women nominees for the Tucson Local Media Women of Influence for her work in helping change the lives of Tucson's single moms and their children.

Announcing Our New Look and Slogan

You may have noticed something a little different about ICS lately. We've recently released a new brand identity, which includes a new logo, font and a short branding statement "Where Help Brings Hope." You'll see the new look anywhere we are out in public, like our letterhead, website, newsletters and publications, on our building signage and vehicles and in our social media.

We believe the new look better captures and contemporizes the scope of ICS's work while the new slogan provides a more immediate and memorable way to understand what ICS is all about. Whether in our offices or through our volunteers working throughout the community, wherever ICS is, that's "Where Help Brings Hope."

While our logo may have changed over the years, including this new version, ICS remains dedicated to our founding mission: "To help people in need achieve stable, healthy and independent lives."

ICS Opens New Southside Office

ICS is pleased to announce the opening of offices at the El Pueblo Neighborhood Center at 101 W Irvington Rd, Tucson, AZ 85706 beginning April 1.

The new office at the El Pueblo Neighborhood Center is designed to improve access to ICS services as well as volunteer opportunities for neighbors on Tucson's southside, and is a major step towards the organization's objective to widen access to ICS services throughout the community. The El Pueblo Center office compliments existing ICS offices on Tucson's northwest and eastside.

ICS will offer case management for clients seeking emergency financial assistance at the new El Pueblo Neighborhood Center location. We will also offer monthly volunteer orientations and other volunteer services at this location. The new office is open on an appointment basis Monday – Thursday from 9am – 2pm. For more information, go to www.icstucson.org or call Lauryn Valladarez, Community Outreach Assistant, at 520-526-9288.

Be brave enough to start a conversation that matters.

Faith Community Engagement News

ICS welcomes our newest partner faith community! Saguaro Christian Church (Disciples of Christ), led by Rev. Owen Chandler, is excited to be partnering in service with ICS. This faith community and its members are quickly getting involved with ICS in various ways and look forward to continuing its participation.

Here is just a sampling of other ICS faith community partners in action:

Five ICS Partner Faith Communities held an interfaith prayer service that collected spaghetti noodles and sauce for the ICS Food Banks.

Alive Church sent a large group to volunteer at Empty Bowls and another volunteer group to help homebound seniors with yardwork.

Northminster Presbyterian Church is hosting our new Getting Ahead self-sufficiency workshop.

Northwest Community Friends Church sent a group

Changing Lives Today and Tomorrow

From his vantage point volunteering on the ICS front desk, Ed Jenkins hears about every crisis that can send an individual or family into a tailspin.

“I’ll never forget the young woman with three kids who called desperate for help,” Ed says. Her husband left, taking her purse and cleaning out the checking account, leaving the family with nothing: no food, no rent money, no ID. All they had was eleven cents from one of the children. We had her come in, and ICS provided the woman and her kids with food, assisted her in getting a new ID and gas for her car. Our case manager worked with the woman and helped her figure out how to put her life together again.”

Ed says, “Think what would have happened to this family if ICS hadn’t been there with resources and compassion to assist.”

Ed also remembers a gentleman – a skilled craftsman – who fractured his leg and was out of work. The man wound up homeless, bouncing between shelters. Now healed, he had the opportunity to get another job, but didn’t have work boots or money for a pre-employment drug test, which his new employer didn’t provide. “For less than $100, ICS was able to help this man and get him on his way to becoming successful and self-reliant again,” Ed says.

Longtime donors, Ed and his wife Kay say they give to ICS as a way to help solve issues that are important to them and to the community, like hunger and homelessness. “We like to support organizations that we know personally and are involved with firsthand,” Ed adds, “ICS offers many ways to get involved, from giving rides to seniors to helping people find jobs to distributing food bags. Most volunteer positions involve assisting clients. We see the impact of ICS every day, and we know ICS is a responsible steward of donations,” Ed adds. “We love being part of that.”

Ed, who is the retired head of the Federal Accounting Standards Board (FASB), knew markets fluctuate and tax laws change, but believes strongly that organizations like ICS need and deserve a stable base of support to remain viable. That's why he and Kay helped establish the ICS Permanent Endowment Fund years ago, providing a major gift and matching funds to jumpstart ICS's legacy giving program. The Endowment continues to return over $125,000 annually to ICS and the Jenkinss remain advocates for both legacy and current gifts to ICS.

"ICS has been here a long time and, with support, we can ensure its important work can be sustainable into perpetuity. There are many ways to give: a cash donation, retirement assets or RMD, making ICS the beneficiary of a paid life insurance policy you no longer need, or remembering ICS in your will or estate. By giving an estate or other gift while you are still living, you can determine the kind of legacy you leave. And by giving now, you allow ICS to recognize and thank you for your gift."

Ed shared, "We know that tomorrow someone is going to walk into ICS, and that ICS may be all that stands between that person and homelessness, hunger or other crisis. It is a good feeling to know that we can help change someone's life not just today, but for the many tomorrows to come."

Empty Bowls

to fight hunger and feed hope

The 2018 Empty Bowls fundraiser brought in a record-breaking $89,500 for the ICS Food Banks. Your support makes it possible to feed more families in need. We're grateful to all sponsors, food and restaurant partners, potters, the many hardworking volunteers, and a dedicated event committee who made this year's event a tremendous success. In addition to helping to keep our shelves stocked and the ICS Food Banks open, a portion of this year's proceeds will help grow the ICS Mobile Food Pantry program in cooperation with the Community Food Bank of Southern Arizona. This will allow people who cannot physically come to the ICS Food Bank to get the help they need. Your efforts make all the difference for our food banks and our neighbors who are struggling. Thank You!

Something for all tastes: Guests sampled soups, breads and desserts from more than 20 area restaurants and food partners.

Thank you to Jada Crellin Ahern for coordinating all of the potters and potting studios.

Marjon Ceramics

Thanks to potters from the Southern Arizona Clay Artists and local studios for creating and donating the bowls, and to Marjon Ceramics and Laguna Clay for donating clay and supplies.
